

LOWCOUNTRY PREPARATORY SCHOOL

The Ideal Learning Environment

September 21, 2023

Marlin Families,

On behalf of the faculty and staff, I want to extend an expression of gratitude to you for your partnership in the cultivation of the ideal learning environment. It is a true delight to work with your children and there is a great deal of energy and enthusiasm in the classrooms and around campus. Athletically, our volleyball, tennis and cross-country teams have demonstrated the results of hard work and have found success in competition. If you have not yet been to watch a game, match or race, look for an afternoon home event and come out to cheer on our Marlin athletes. Academically, our middle school students recently created a science museum and invited the elementary Marlins to tour and spend a morning observing chemical reaction demonstrations. For our juniors and seniors, college admissions representatives from Wofford College, the College of Charleston, Francis Marion University and Horry Georgetown Technical College were on campus one afternoon to offer guidance in the completion of the common application, review individual essays, provide perspective on the college application process and assist in the identification of available scholarship funding. We had a spectacular September!

The Marlin Monthly Admin Report has been designed to develop a shared sense of purpose and promote the goals and values of the Lowcountry Prep community. This month, we are excited to share with our community the Annual Report for 2022-2023. Throughout this 32-page document, you will find moments of celebration and generosity that highlight just a few of the meaningful connections, enriching experiences and contributions to our secure and supportive environment that exemplify our collective mission. In this Annual Report, we have also included information about our Annual Fund and how philanthropic giving directly benefits the students in our care.
